

Analysis of nutrient management program at the health centers in Region District Health Bireuen, Aceh, Indonesia in the year 2011

Mainora

Bireuen District Health Office, Indonesia

Systems approach in management is an approach in improving health care quality in integral. The system is made up of several components that influence each other; these components are the input, process and output. Authors are interested in seeing the analysis of nutrient management programs in health centers in the county health department because of several factors, namely Bireuen energy, less weight infants and the ability of local administration. The purpose of the study is to analyze the management of nutrition programs in health centers in Bireuen district health office with a systematic approach which consists of three components, namely input, process, and output. Descriptive study design evaluation studies that use the research to assess a program that is being or has been done to repair or improve program was conducted in May 2012. The sample population was 18 people and implemented Energy Nutrition (Nutrition Coordinator) in 18 health centers in the area of Bireuen district health department.

Biography

Mainora, a civil servant in charge of Bireuen District Health Office, Aceh, Indonesia as manager of Nutrition program. She is currently studying at the University of Indonesia public health postgraduate. She has published many research papers in National and International Journals.

mainora81@yahoo.com

 Notes: